

Independent researchers have found that malware* on your computer can secretly intercept your vote cast over the Internet, thereby violating the secrecy of the vote.

*Malware is malicious software that can manipulate and/or spy on your PC/laptop, such as viruses, Trojans, worms, and similar programs.

In the following, please test Voting System C. This system resolves the security issue mentioned earlier, whereby malware on your computer could secretly intercept your vote cast over the Internet. Thus, Voting System C protects not only the integrity of the vote but also the secrecy of the vote.